Internship Available in Communications/Public Relations

The Yakima Valley Farm Workers Clinic seeks an intern or interns to assist the Public Relations Department. This internship offers valuable, real-world experience while providing the organization with new, innovative creativity in its communications.

Interns work a minimum of 15–20 hours a week during the current quarter/semester. A biweekly stipend is offered. The main PR office is located in the city of Yakima. Other work arrangements may be considered.

Interns must be organized, detail-oriented, possess strong writing skills, and be majoring in a communications-related field. A minimum GPA of 3.0 is required. Desktop publishing experience preferred.

The main duty of the intern(s) is the coordination and development of a weekly newspaper segment focusing on clinic services.

This project requires:
- Writing original content.
- Researching topics.
- Compiling graphics.
- Laying out the segments.
- Interviewing members of the medical and dental staff for expert opinions.

Other duties may include:
- Providing writing support for other corporate projects as needed.
- Other duties as assigned by the Public Relations Director.

To be considered for this internship, please submit your résumé, letter of interest and at least two writing samples by April 15, 2008, to:
