Spend next summer in the Rockies with ...

The Denver Post Internship Program 2012

The No. 1 newspaper in the Rocky Mountain region is helping shape the futures of the next generation of journalists by offering a 10-week internship for the summer of 2012. To do so, The Denver Post is looking for talented young people who want to make a difference.

Interns work in several parts of the newsroom — as news or features reporters, online producers, photographers, graphic artists or designers. Denver Post interns are paid about $497 per week (housing and transportation to Denver are not included).

We work with Dow Jones Newspaper Fund to identify intern candidates for copy editing, online and business reporting positions. Please apply directly to Dow Jones Newspaper Fund for these positions. For more information about applying for the online, copy editing and the business reporting internships, please visit http://www.newsfund.org. We also work with the Sports Journalism Institute to select a sports reporter intern. For more information about applying for the sports reporter internship, please visit http://www.sportsjournalisminstitute.org.

REQUIREMENTS

- Applicants should have completed junior year in college before Summer 2011
- A demonstrated interest in print and online journalism (clips or portfolio)
- Reporting applicants should include no more than 5 clips
- Please include cover letter outlining which position most interests you
- List of three references

---

If you are a motivated college student looking to thrive in a newsroom atmosphere, please send your letter, clips or portfolio, resume and references to:

Internship recruiter
The Denver Post
101 W. Colfax Ave., Suite 600
Denver, CO 80202

DEADLINE for RECEIVING applications is Monday, Oct. 31, 2011

For PHOTOGRAPHY applications, send a portfolio on a CD encased in a CD envelope.
For GRAPHICS or DESIGN, applicants may send portfolios of 8 1/2 x 11 photocopied designs, non-returnable tearsheets or CDs.
This is a hands-on internship. Reporters, photographers, copy editors, page designers, online producers, and graphic designers are expected to perform as full-fledged members of the staff, so we are looking for those who are committed to the profession. Our most competitive candidates have successfully completed at least one internship.

Last year, we received more than 250 applications.

If you have candidates, please let them know about the program. We encourage students who have solid Spanish language skills or who offer diversity to apply to our program.

The Denver Post has a partnership with The Sports Journalism Institute, which provides a sports reporter, and with Dow Jones Newspaper Fund, which provides this newspaper with a news copy editor, a sports copy editor, business reporter, and an online editor. Students interested in those roles should apply directly to Dow Jones at https://www.newsfund.org or to The Sports Journalism Institute at http://www.sportsjournalisminstitute.org.

The flier is also on our web page at www.denverpost.com/internships. If you or any of your students have questions, our internship recruiter can be reached at 303-954-1001. Note that the deadline for receiving applications is October 31, 2011. Applications received after that date will not be considered.

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Jeanette M. Chavez