“‘In Law and Equity’: Unpacking the Constitutional Roots of American Race Relations Arguments”

Wednesday, February 4, 2009
3:40 – 5:00 p.m.
126 Communications

Professor James Jasinski is the Chair of the Communication Studies department at the University of Puget Sound, and an affiliate member of the graduate faculty in the Department of Communication at the University of Washington. His research focuses on American public discourse with special emphasis on African American rhetoric, antebellum public argument, constitutional argument, and political communication. This talk explores prudential argument in Supreme Court decisions on race and education.
